Other Services

Use the Library from off Campus
To access ebooks, online journals, course reserves and databases, from off campus, just enable UC San Diego's VPN (virtual private network). Simple instructions are available online.

Using the Library

Check out Books
Use your ID to check out books using our self checkout machines or at the circulation desk, or to manage your library account online.

Renew Books Online
Renew books online, get books from other libraries and more by setting up your Library PIN to activate your library account. Visit the Library’s website and click on “My Library Account” to get started.

Find Books, Videos, and More
Use Roger, the Library’s online catalog, to locate books, ebooks, newspapers, journals, DVDs, music, and more at UC San Diego.

Course Reserves
Course reserves are books, articles and other materials that your professors place ‘on reserve’ for their classes, so you can always use them when the Library is open. Click the “Course Reserves” tab on the Library home page and search by the course name or professor. Some materials are available online and some require you to come in to the Library.

In the Library

Library Hours
Current hours can always be found online. Hours vary and change during finals and intersession. You’ll find study space in Geisel open 24/5 and 24/7 during finals week.

Computer Labs
We have computer labs in the Library, and most have Microsoft Office and Matlab. There are also labs across campus. A complete list can be found online:

ACMS.ucsd.edu/students/labs.shtml

Group Study Rooms
You’ll find a variety of study rooms in the Geisel Library and Biomedical Library Building that you can reserve online. You’ll need your ID card and the number on the back of the card that begins with 21822.

Print in the Library
Print from any Library computer using your student ID. The cost is 10 cents for B&W or 50 cents for color. More information is available online.
