Refugees Caught in Union Dispute at Coast Egg Farm

By ROBERT LINDSEY

Special to The New York Times

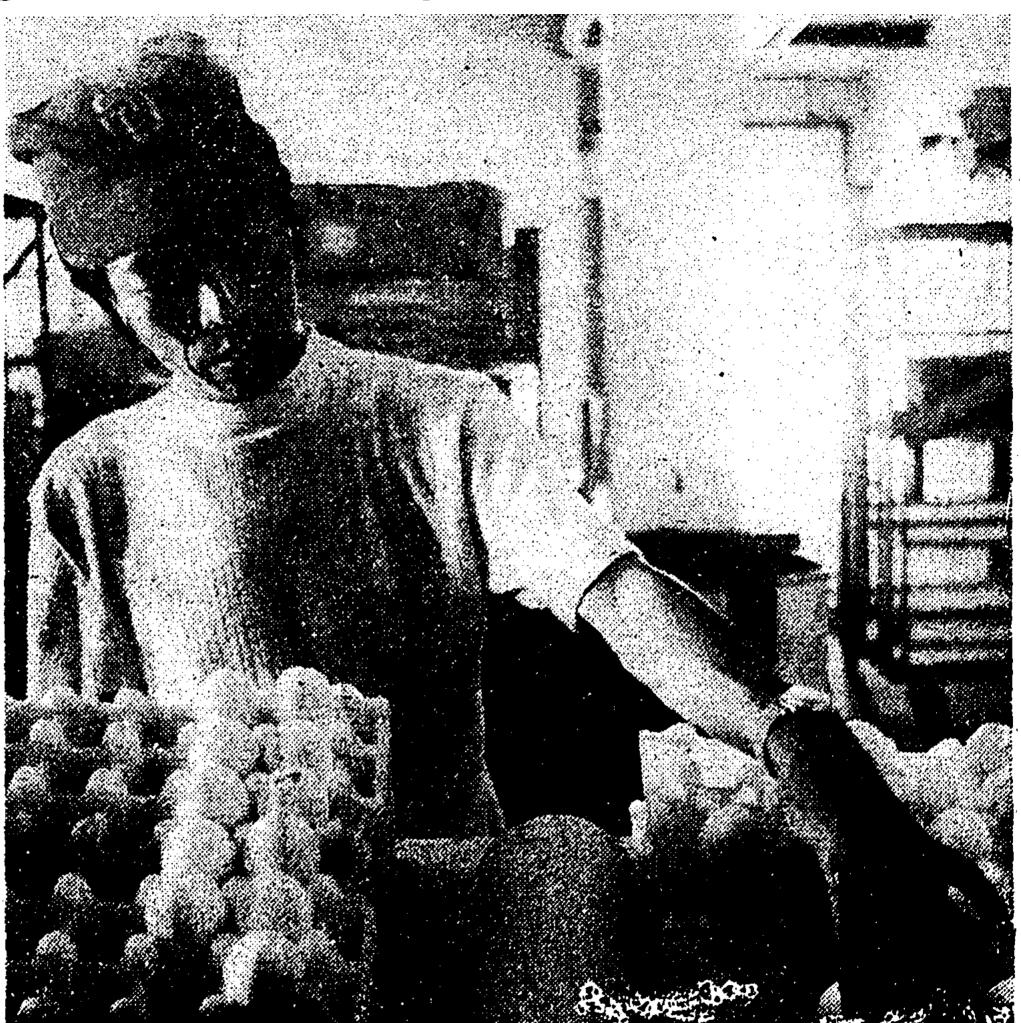

MOORPARK, Calif., Aug. 8—Phan Than Khiet stands less than 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is thin and wan, and his right arm is gone—hardly someone likely to aggravate a bitter labor dispute. But as he works in the sweltering California heat in a place they call Egg City, he is hearing a word for which there is no counterpart in his native Vietnamese.

The word—and it is always exclaimed emphatically — is "Scab!"

Mr. Khiet, to the people holding red picket flags outside the gates of Egg City, which says it is the largest egg production facility in the world, personifies the fears that many Americans have held about the influx of thousands of Vietnamese refugees to this country. He has taken—or so it is charged—the job of an American.

Such fears are especially acute among people at the low end of the wage scale here in California—those who seek sustenance in farm work and other fields with few requirements for skills, and in some areas, such as the garment industry, where some Vietnamese do

Continued on Page 31, Column 1

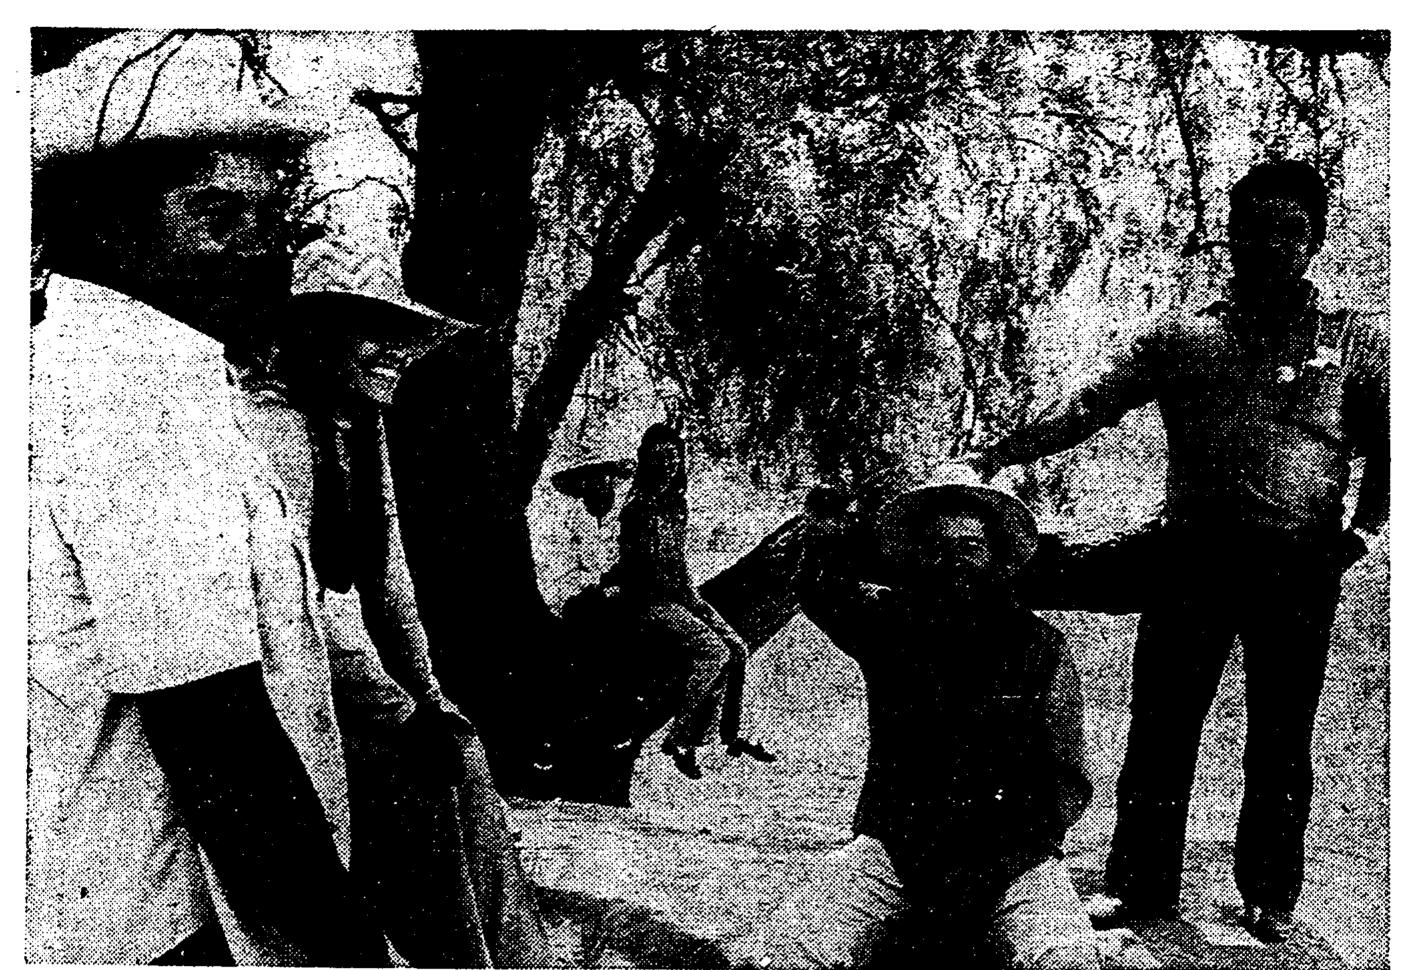

The New York nimes/David Strick

Phan Than Khiet, who lost his right arm in Vietnam, sorts eggs in Moorpark, Calif.

The New York Times

Published: August 9, 1975 Copyright © The New York Times

Members of the United Farm Workers, who call Vietnamese strike breakers, outside egg plant in Moorpark, Calif.

Refugees Are Caught in Union Dispute at Egg Farm

have skills.

unions have stepped up their tion told the Vietnamese here represent his workers. five-year organizational battle that it would probably be best choose a union by secret ballot unanimously to stay on the when the law takes effect Aug. job. 28. 🕠

Farm Workers appears to be and forth to the job. doing whatever it can to exploit their presence as "strikebreakers"; the teamsters union has taken them in as members and asserts it is doing a good deed; and the Egg City management says that it wants to give refugees who want to work a chance to work.

Mr. Khiet, who is 35 years old, and 13 other refugees have been hired at the sprawling poultry center 52 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, where 350 workers, mostly of Mexican descent, walked off the job April 10 after a popular employe was dismissed. And more-Vietnamese are on the way. Last night, the families of some of the Vletnamese arrived. Six more Vietnamese workers are scheduled to come on Monday to work as egg collectors, sorters, checkers, mechanics and in other positions. The owners of the facility have said they are willing to hire up to 100 more Vietnamese, possibly as many as 200. "They're strikebreakers," says Eliseo Medina, an official of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers. "I'm very, very happy," says Mr. Khiet, who lost his arm as a soldier in South Vietnam and learned English as an employe for the American military forces. "I badly needed a job to take care of my family. I hope to work here all of my life."

The Vietnamese were brought here from a resettlement camp in Northern Caliorganization fornia by an called Food for the Hungry, one of several groups that have been resettling Vietnamese. Originally, six other workers were few days either because they daily.

They are living in two old There are indications that the houses near Egg City that were Vietnamese at Egg City are rented by Food for the Hungry, his work properly; the U.F.W., called that." being used as pawns by all and they are using a van lent

3 Million Chickens

rus groves and rolling hills izations. staked out in the early nineteensixtys by Julius Goldman, Polish engineer who had fled Nazi Germany, Earlier, he had started an egg business in the San Fernando Valley nearer Los Angeles with 3,000 chickens, but was forced to move here by an onrush of housing developments.

duction automated, Egg City teamsters because they have no houses, which is now paid by duction automated, Egg City place to go. That's why it's im- Food for the Hungry, and they produces eggs at an awesome portant—the election." more than 3 million rate:

Continued From Page 1, Col. 5 hired, but they left after a chickens lay 1.8 million eggs have shouted in anger at

To a large extent, the Viet- was too strenuous for them. Chavez was trying to organize sent the refugees personally. namese have been caught in a After a large group repre- California farm workers, Mr. ers, and the International Broth- offices in Glendale early this neurs, signed a contract giving breakers," he said. erhood of Teamsters. The week, officers of the organiza- the teamsters exclusive right to John Rogers, a vice president in the California farmlands be- if they left. But officials of April 10 were teamsters, but the first place, these people cause of recently passed legis- Egg City urged them to stay their union did not sanction were brought by our Governlation that will allow farm on if they wanted to, and the the strike, and it in fact helped ment; we feel if there is a comworkers, for the first time, to remaining Vietnamese voted Mr. Goldman recruit replace- plaint to be lodged, it should sides in the dispute. The United by the company to get back the strike, says the man had because we needed people-The setting for the dispute is port the farm workers in the can turn off a switch and close an all but self-contained, 350- forthcoming elections to pick it down. As it is, we had to sell acre world situated among cit- between the rival labor organ- about one million chickens be-

Calls Them Captives

"The problem with the Vietnamese is that they're a captive labor force," Mr. Medina, the between Egg City and the U.F.W. organizer, said. "They've teamsters union-$2.50 an hour just been through a traumatic to start, $2.75 after one month, experience and are very in- and $2.95 after three months. secure. When the election is With their first weekly pay held, they will have to take the checks due next week, they Now, with much of the pro- company's side and go with the plan to take over rent on their

While some striking employes communal car to get around in.

the Vietnamese, Mr. Medina did not like the work or it Five years ago, at a time Mr. stressed that most did not re-

"It is the Government's fault: crossfire between two rival senting the U.F.W. demonstrat- Goldman, as did many big Cali- the Government shouldn't have unions—the United Farm Work- ed at Food for the Hungry's fornia agribusiness entrepre- allowed them to become strike-of Egg City, defended the de-The 350 workers who struck cision to hire them, saying: "In ments for the strikers. The be lodged with the Government. company says that the man And, they're not strikebreakers; whose discharge led to the if anything, the first group we original walkout was not doing hired after the strike might be which took over leadership of "We hired the Vietnamese been active in attempting to we still do," he added. "We're organize the workers to sup- not like a factory where you cause we didn't have enough people."

> The Vietnamese, for their part, seem delighted. They are paid on a schedule negotiated are talking about buying a