CESAR CHAVEZ AND THE UNITED FARM WORKERS OF AMERICA WANT YOU THIS SUMMER...
WHAT YOU'LL DO...

This depends on one thing: YOU

Depending on your skills, your interests and on what is most needed at the time, you may:

* plan and carry out a mass letter writing campaign;

* organize neighborhood supporters for leafleting at shopping centers, concerts and special events;

* develop support committees at churches, temples and organizations;

* work on the planning, publicity, food and music that goes into a monthly "mini-fiesta;"

* come up with a plan to make the office more efficient;

* edit the statewide newsletter.

Whatever you do, you'll be joining hands with farm workers across the country in their effort to bring the protection and dignity of their own union to those who have for so long known only poverty and despair.

WHAT WORKING FOR THE UFW IS ALL ABOUT:

* long hours, six days a week for $5 a week plus room, board and transportation;

* joining in with people like you who know that justice is not achieved overnight with banners and slogans, but with vigorous, determined action day in, day out;

* knowing that you're helping to change the way things are in this world--really.

In April 5000 people attended South Florida's first Farm Worker Fiesta in an unprecedented show of support for the migrant struggle.

People are joining all over the country in the effort to win the grape, lettuce and Gallo wine boycott--and to bring a measure of justice to America's three million farm workers.

We need you to help spread the word of the struggle.
In 1965 wages in the grape vineyards of California were $1 an hour.

That year farm workers struck the fields and began a decade of struggle for the dignity and protection of their own union, THE UNITED FARM WORKERS.

In 1974 pesticides still kill hundreds of farm workers---men, women and children--every year.

Crew bosses still retain their reign of power over the lives of farm workers and their families.

Children still leave school after the sixth grade to begin their lives in the fields.

And farm workers still enjoy a life expectancy of only 49 years...

But, for the first time, farm workers have the hope that they can change their own lives. They've seen their union work, and they're giving everything they've got to the fight to win UFW contracts which can provide decent wages...medical care...job security...an end to the crew boss system...an end to child labor...strict pesticide controls and the chance to live and work with dignity...
