TEAMSTERS MEET WITH CHAVEZ UNIT

6th Week of Secret Talks

Some Progress Notes

By LEE DEBMBART

Head of the Teamsters

SECRET negotiations aimed at averting a longshoreman strike and the National Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, here in Los Angeles, were breaking down into a public feud yesterday. The men in the talks said.

Workers and the union said that the move was made in an attempt to keep the strike out of the California longshoremen's jurisdiction, where the workers are organized.

The two sides had been meeting behind closed doors since yesterday. The talks were initiated by the union, which said they would continue.

The two sides were meeting to discuss a settlement of a longshoremen's strike in Los Angeles, which has been going on for six weeks.

The talks were initiated by the union, which said they would continue.

The two sides were meeting to discuss a settlement of a longshoremen's strike in Los Angeles, which has been going on for six weeks.

The talks were initiated by the union, which said they would continue.

The two sides were meeting to discuss a settlement of a longshoremen's strike in Los Angeles, which has been going on for six weeks.

The talks were initiated by the union, which said they would continue.

The two sides were meeting to discuss a settlement of a longshoremen's strike in Los Angeles, which has been going on for six weeks.

The talks were initiated by the union, which said they would continue.